

My Daughter - Close Call With Autism

Hi, I thought I might share some encouraging words for those with autistic children. Perhaps, my story might help you or someone you know. My oldest daughter started showing signs of autism at the age of six. Here is the story of our experience.

My daughter Hannah is my first child. She was developmentally ahead in every thing. She had a list of 20 vocabulary words at the age of five months (no joke). People would elbow me with shock, in awe that she could speak at that age (none of my other five children ever developed this advanced). If I told anyone how advanced she was they would accuse me that I was exaggerating. That was until they heard her speak for themselves. She was reading at the age of three (very short easy words). She went to the public elementary school at the age of three because she was a bit clumsy or gross motor delayed. She said, on the way home from school, "Mom, will you homeschool me, because I learn more at home with you than I do at that school?". I would have wrecked the car if I had been anywhere but driving through my subdivision because I slammed on my break in disbelief that any three year old would be able to say that. Okay, so you understand that she was well advanced by her age. However, this all drastically changed.

At the age of six years, suddenly, as if someone turned off a light switch, Hannah could no longer speak intelligibly. I remember it like it was yesterday. It was shortly after her five year old shots. She could no longer easily complete school work. She started struggling in all her studies, falling backwards. She started losing her hair, going terribly bald on especially the top of the head (handfuls were coming out). What was once so easy for her became very difficult. She could no longer write her beautiful paragraphs in her journal. Her writing became a string of mixed up letters that didn't make sense. We could see a very rapid spiral downward (I still have all her journals to show this). She could no longer do math or other subjects that once were so easy for her. She cried at the frustration. I could no longer understand her words. She went from very advance verbal skills, to speaking jumbled sounds. She was speaking worse than my two year old at the age of five. It was so sad. I felt so helpless as her mom. It was as if she was drifting off into another world. I frantically took her to the doctors, with no help. They pointed me to the education dept. As a past elementary teacher, I knew that all they could do was treat the symptoms. I cried out to God.

As if God had placed me in the right place at the right time, I heard a radio broadcast regarding mercury poisoning in children. That struck me like lightning in my spirit. I had Hannah's hair tested (very expensive hundred dollar hair analysis through my chiropractor). She had alarmingly toxic levels of mercury in her system (which horrified my doctor who immediately called me to come in right away-over ninety percent mercury which is deadly-she almost had enough in her to kill her). I even paid a huge amount to have my water tested, and our soil. There is no mercury. We live in a new home so there is no mercury in our paint. I knew with the timing of her experience that it was right after the shots, but the doctors said there was no mercury in the shots, or was there? My new pediatrician confirmed that there is Thimerosal in the MMR shot and the flu vaccines. So, I ordered a product that gets the mercury out by means of the urine (safer than the stool route), from the information that I got from the radio. As if someone turned the switch back on as quickly as they had turned it off, she immediately started speaking correctly and doing better on her school work. I was shocked at the difference. It was as different as night and day. In reflecting, Hannah had had all her shots with all the mercury additives. I shared this information with my brother in law (who has a Doctorate degree in autism or special needs and who teaches college courses in New York) and sister in law (Masters in autism and special needs children, who works in the school system). They both said that Hannah was about six weeks away from full blown autism. They said that the pharmaceutical companies only used mercury because it was the cheapest preservative. For a few pennies more they could have used a different preservative. Greed was the motivator. They were both familiar with all the symptoms and problems that had alarmed me. I was shocked to learn all of this.

The doctors say that mercury is no longer present in today's shots. However, that is wrong information. The MMR shot still has mercury. My son's speech therapist said that her son developed autistic signs immediately after the shots. My girlfriend's friend, a nurse, said the same thing (including a diary of what happened). There is a group of doctors whose children became autistic after the shots who now speak out. Missouri no longer forces their parents to give the MMR shots because of the huge number of children who developed autism after the shot. The state of Missouri has stopped making the MMR shot required by parents to get into the schools because of the high autism that parents were experiencing after the shot. In fact, there is a fund sitting in Washington for those who develop autism as a result of the shots (but the legislators put a hold on anyone getting any more of that money-probably because their are so many). It surprised me to find that out!

So, mercury can cause autism. Perhaps, not all autism is caused by mercury. But, there is obviously some connection in my experience.

In saying all of this, the product that changed my daughter's health is: Heavy Metal Nano-Detox and Quantum Brain Complex. These together need to be given; the younger the age, the better the results (the body metabolizes faster). The phone number for ordering is 800-370-3447. This worked so well for my daughter that it was like flipping a light switch on. While I was on the plane flying to vacation with my husband, I read in the Chicago Times that you have to be careful not to extract it too quickly because it is very toxic to the liver. The article also said the sooner you get it out of the body, when the child is young, the better the outcome. I started administering this product to Hannah when she was eight. I was very cautious- too cautious. I only gave her one dose a day. However, the outcome was astonishing. This year, at the age of ten, I doubled the dose. One dose in the morning and one dose in the early afternoon. That really drastically helped more. She is almost back to her old self (academically and health-wise (her hair has grown back..eczema clears up...immune system stronger). I will get another hair analysis later this year to see how much mercury is in her system compared to when she started on this product. I expect the results will be impressive. Hannah still experiences some problems. When we ran out of the product, and she was off for a week, she started to again have really bad speech, the old problems started revisiting. So, this product has really helped Hannah. I hope in sharing this I can give some of you hope. I know how scary of an experience I had with my daughter almost becoming autistic. It was a fast, slippery downhill spiral that no parent should ever have to experience.

I do not wish to step on any toes with anyone who might have a different experience with autism. I do not mean to say that all autistic children have mercury poisoning. However, it wouldn't hurt to have any child checked for this, to rule it out. I would only like to pass on my story to help someone else. The purpose of this post is not to dispute, but to bring hope and help to someone else who might benefit from my experience. My second daughter developed ADD after the shots. She is almost completely well again now, after treatment.

Two experiences like this was enough for me. I immediately stopped all vaccinations for the rest of my children. My other four children are incredibly healthy and well. I don't think I will play Russian Roulette with any of their health. My experiences and the experiences of those close to me is enough for me. I don't want anyone else to go through this.

Besides my story, here are many, many more stories about the damage of vaccines. My pediatrician freely admits knowing this but says that it is best for the majority so the minority pay the price. How sad. Try this link:

Just a note: It was my pediatrician who informed me that it was the MMR shot that still has the mercury in it. Here is another source that seems to agree with my pediatrician:

" The MMR was said not to contain thimerosal but we found out that Merck DOES use thimerosal in the processing of the MMR, they just do not add it to the vaccine as an ingredient."

I haven't read this book about vaccines, but I think it is wise not to just get anyone who has monetary interest's interest view on this, such as doctors or those who benefit from the drug companies. Parents need to research this for themselves, and take heed from those of us who have experienced autism. The title of the book is What Your Doctor May Not Tell You About Children's Vaccinations.

One more link. Here is a website for doctors against vaccines. Isn't it interesting that those who can testify that there is a link between the shots and huge health problems are treated as if our experiences don't matter? Those who oppose the information do so with their opinion as being more weighty than those who have had the experiences. How arrogant for some to dismiss my experience, my speech therapists experience, my girlfriend's friend, and many others. Here is a doctors against shots link:
